Cousin Cupcake
2093 words

"We raise 'em pretty!" is what my Uncle Bob had to say when he was asked to quote about his daughter, and my cousin, Bridgette Webster. You may be wondering what my uncle meant in making that statement. Well, it is an inside joke that when someone in our family says something stupid, we say, "Oh, you're so pretty!" If you ask me, we must have a beautiful family because of all the stupid things we have said in the past. I will explain more about that later on in the essay. So, on to my cousin, Bridgette.

Bridgette Marie Webster was born on August 27, 1988, in beautiful Home Hospital in Lafayette, Indiana. She was born into the family of Bob and Laurie Webster, and so far the only child. Later she would go on to become the older sister of Caitlin Danielle Webster, born in 1990, and Maegan Christine Webster, born in 1992.

When she got old enough to finally go to school, she attended a catholic school. The school she attended for kindergarten through sixth grade was St. Lawrence. Her whole family, including aunts and uncles, had attended the school, and she was required to carry on the tradition. When I asked Bridgette what she remembered about St. Lawrence, she replied the uniforms.

What you were required to wear when attending school, was either a yellow or white shirt, provided by the school. You could wear this with either black pants or black shorts. And you could only wear the black shorts in September and May. If you didn't want to wear the shirt and pants
